Over cupcakes on a café patio in Westdale, Lyla Miklos and Phil Angemi shook hands and made amends.

Miklos went into Angemi's business, the Westdale Barber Shop, last week looking to get a free haircut with a gift certificate from a silent auction, but he said he doesn't cut women's hair.

The 38-year-old Hamiltonian said she doesn't need compensation for her gift certificate nor does she need her hair cut.

She said she will drop her complaint with the Ontario Human Rights Commission because Angemi said he would cut women's hair in the future if the same situation occurred.

"It was a misunderstanding, that's all," Angemi said.
