I have just returned home from an exciting weekend at Polaris where Michael Hogan aka BSG's Col. Tigh was one of the media guests. What a refreshing, fun, energetic, generous and humble con guest. The pure joy he had for the fans, his life and his career was downright infectious. He was entertaining, genuine and more than anything truly loving every moment of his convention experience. On Saturday night he hung out for hours with all the fans in the hotel bar. Too cool! It reminded me of the old days of Toronto Trek when John Colicos would just show up on Friday night for Karaoke in the Banyan Tree Lounge at the Constellation and hang out with the fans. And he wasn't even a guest! Mr. Hogan is a real "salt of the earth" kind of guy, who was honestly and profoundly grateful for all the new and amazing experiences that his association with the BSG franchise has opened up for him. Although he said he was in the "twilight" of his career he most certainly is enjoying and relishing every moment.

Thanks for giving me such a memorable con experience Mr. Hogan.

You were definitely worth the trip to Richmond Hill.

So Say We All!
